Aikido is a modern martial art system with traditional roots, practiced for awareness, health/fitness/wellness, and spiritual/personal exploration, as well as self-defense. Aikido is a paradoxical practice because it is a martial art that teaches not-fighting; it is often called "The Way of Peace." In Ki-Aikido, a soft form of the art, power comes from rhythm and timing within an aware relationship. Practice is filled with smiles, laughter, cooperation, and also a sincere earnestness.

Instructor: Jim Vogt, a 20-year practitioner, is an affiliate of the Eastern Ki Federation.
